INTRODUCTION

The Canvas Calendar is a useful way for you to track due dates and deadlines for your courses. We recommend that you take full advantage of this tool as a way to help you organize your workload. This tip sheet provides you with an overview of the tool and shows you how to take advantage of some of its more useful features.

ACCESSING THE CALENDAR

Where to Find It

The Canvas Calendar can be found on the global navigation menu from any page in Canvas. It can also be found via a course's Syllabus tab. The Calendar view from the global navigation menu displays upcoming due dates for all of your courses; the view from a specific course's Syllabus tab shows dates for only that course.

What You See

In addition to displaying due dates, you can see what is due and for which course. The global Calendar view provides a snapshot across all your courses, which is great for short-term planning.

NAVIGATING

For a more comprehensive view of your course due dates, you can choose to see just a week's worth of dates or a month's worth of dates. You can also select the Agenda view to group your course events by date. Each item on the agenda is color-coded to represent a specific course.

If you click on an item in the Calendar or Agenda views, the details will appear in a dialog box, from which you can also change the due date of that item. If you click More Options, you will be brought to the edit page of that item within the course.

In the top-right corner, you can also add an item such as an event, an assignment, or a to-do. You can select which course you want to add the item to by selecting it in the Calendar drop-down menu.
